Conversation Starters:

It is important for retail investors to ask a financial professional the following questions:

- Given my financial situation, should I choose an investment advisory service? Should I choose a brokerage service? Should I choose both types of services? Why or why not?
- How will you choose investments to recommend to me?
- What is your relevant experience, including your licenses, education and other qualifications? What do these qualifications mean?

What fees will I pay?

Fees and costs affect the value of your account over time. Please ask your financial professional to give you personalized information on the fees and costs associated with your account.

Broker-Dealer Services (Brokerage)	Investment Adviser Services (Advisory)
For brokerage services, you will pay us a transaction-based fee, generally referred to as a " commission ," every time you buy or sell an investment.	For advisory financial planning and consulting services, you will pay us a fee based on a flat, hourly, or recurring rate (or a combination thereof).
With stocks or exchange traded funds, the fee is usually a separate commission. With other investments, such as bonds, the fee, called a " markup " or " mark-down " might be part of the price you pay for the investment. With mutual funds, the fee, typically called a " load ," reduces the value of your investment or amount of shares purchased.	For advisory asset management services, you will pay us an " asset based fee " based on a percentage of the assets we or related third parties manage for you. This fee will be charged to you on a monthly or quarterly basis depending on the investment program selected.
Some investments, such as mutual funds, variable annuities and alternative investments, impose additional fees that will reduce the value of your investment over time. Also, with certain investments, such as variable annuities, you may have to pay fees such as a " surrender charge " to sell the investment.	For some advisory asset management accounts, otherwise known as " wrap fee programs ," the asset based fee will include most transaction costs and custody services. As a result, wrap fee programs typically have a higher cost than non-wrap fee programs.

It is important for retail investors to ask a financial professional the following question:

- Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments. If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?

What are your legal obligations to me when providing recommendations as my broker-dealer or when acting as my investment adviser? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?

When we provide you with a recommendation as your broker-dealer or act as your investment adviser, we have to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests.

You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they can affect the recommendations and investment advice we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means.

- Third Party Payments: Compensation we receive from third parties when we recommend or sell certain investments. Receipt of these funds directly benefits us and therefore creates a conflict of interest.
- Revenue Sharing: Investments where the manager or sponsor of the investments, or another third party (such as an intermediary), share the revenue they receive on those investments with us. Receipt of these funds directly benefits us and therefore creates a conflict of interest.
